With the American Army in France
March 20.—Secretary of War Baker

today concluded his visit of inspection to the American military zone in France with a trip which took him from Verdun sector to headquarters of the first division of the American and the first division of the whole army. The secretary also visited the birthplace of Joan of Arc and made an incident inspection of troops here and there over the route which he traversed. Tonight the secretary departed to fulfill other aspects of his

BELOIT BOWLERS FAIL TO DISPOSE LEADERS

Gateway City Quinlet Unable to Land First Place in Bowling Tournament.

Waters' Seven-Point team forged into first place in the league last night when they rolled up a score of 2,599, pushing the Clinton squad down to fourth place. Although the two teams had a neck and neck race, the waters' bowlers in the five-man event, their bowlers were consistent throughout and it was due to this that their score was so high. The waters' team consisted of the following: Waters, 1,000; G. J. Smith, 1,000; J. J. Smith, 1,000; J. J. Smith, 1,000; J. J. Smith, 1,000.

FOOD SAVING BOOKS TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Copies of Several Food Saving Bulletins Received.—Will Be Distributed Among Housewives of County.

Several different bulletins containing much valuable information as to various methods of cooking bread, potatoes, and other foods, were received this morning by E. L. Clemens, county food administrator. Only three or four copies of each bulletin were received but a much larger shipment is expected within a few days. When the pamphlets arrive Mr. Clemens plans to distribute them to the housewives throughout the county through the agency of the different women's organizations.

One of the bulletins, entitled "Other Kinds of Bread," contains recipes for the use of barley, rice, potatoes, and rolled oats as partial substitutes for wheat in making bread. Another tells how to convert beans or human consumption, while a third tells of thirty different ways of using potatoes. "What to Feed the Children" is the subject of another very interesting and helpful bulletin. It contains hints on what to eat during the war and the "Ways of Using Corn" are the titles of the other bulletins.

All of the books are published and distributed by the Agricultural Extension Service of the college of agriculture of the university of Wisconsin. K. L. Hatch, assistant director.

MILK FAMINE UNLESS PRICE IS ADJUSTED

Rock County Farmers Predict Scarcity of Milk Unless Government Fixes a Fair Price.

Nearly every member of the Janesville Milk Producers' Association was present at the regular monthly meeting which was held in the West Side Club building Wednesday afternoon. About twenty new members were taken in the organization.

The milk situation in this county has caused a great deal of discussion during the meeting and it was the opinion of all present that unless the farmers received a raise in price that this county would face a milk famine during the summer and that the price of milk would increase. Several of the members joined the Co-operative Milk Marketing Company which is being organized in Chicago and several more have stated that they will join.

The milk question remains the same and no price for the milk has been set. Various interests of the milk industry, after an eight-hour conference in Chicago yesterday with the food administration representative failed to reach an agreement in regard to the price. The conference is also in session today.

CHILDREN WILL BE ASKED TO BUY SEED

Penny Packages of Seed for School Children Will Be Sold by City Federation.

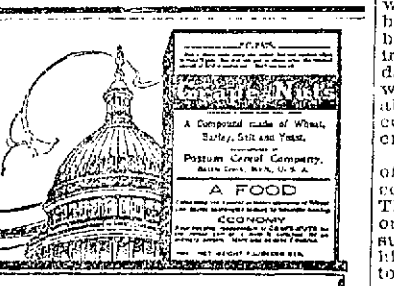

The Civic Committee of the City Federation headed by Mayor Munger has been very busy planning for packages of seed to sell to the school children. There will be six kinds of vegetables—lettuce, radishes, beets, carrots, onions and beans. The packages will be sold for five cents each and will be taken to all the buildings in turn by means of a seed committee in each ward. Owing to the high prices of seeds, some of the varieties will be sold at ten cents a package instead of five cents. This distribution of seeds to the school children has done a great deal to stimulate interest in this kind of work and will be especially useful this year when the state is trying to foster the garden idea.

DR. FIFELED ORDERED INTO ACTIVE SERVICE

Dr. G. W. Fifeled, who was recently commissioned as a captain in the medical reserve corps of the U. S. Army, has been ordered to be ready to enter active service on April 5. The orders which he received did not state when he would be sent. He will remain in this city for a few days and will then leave to take up his new duties.

QUIET REIGNS SUPREME IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Thursday morning was a quiet day for the Municipal court, not one offender being brought in court. Judge M. C. Cassida is in Milwaukee on business. Wednesday evening was also an exceptionally quiet night for the police department.

The recognized value of Grape-Nuts as a "saving" food for these serious times, rests upon real merit.

Unlike the ordinary cereal Grape-Nuts requires no sugar, little milk or cream, and requires no cooking or other preparation in serving.

A trial is well worth while for those who sincerely desire to save.

PEOPLE ARE URGED TO DONATE CLOTHES

Need Is Great In Occupied Parts of Belgium and France—Leave Articles at 58 South Main Street.

As the time is short for which to gather the new and used clothing for the suffering men, women and children of occupied Belgium and France, J. E. Waterbury, chairman of the Janesville chapter of the Red Cross, urges that every person in the city who has any clothes to spare bring them to 58 South Main street so that they can be packed ready for shipment before March 25.

That there is an urgent need for the clothes is a certain fact because of the condition of the people in France and Belgium. But for the Red Cross and the commission of relief in Belgium many more would be suffering. All articles that are sent to the people in this country to do what they can to aid the suffering people.

Practically all kinds of articles of clothing for men, women and children will be acceptable in addition to blankets, pillow cases, sheets and muffs. All articles that are sent must be clean, strong and durable so that they will be of real value to the people who are to receive them.

The receiving store on Main street will be open Tuesday and Wednesday to receive the goods. People are forbidden to send written or printed matter with the clothes or to enclose any notes or messages. A section of all articles will be made by the commission of Belgium relief before the ships are loaded.

MANY MAKE PAYMENTS TO COUNTY WAR FUND

Over Eleven Hundred Dollars Was Paid in Yesterday at the Office—All Are Urged to Pay Assessments.

Although the county war fund campaign workers have not done any soliciting this week, many hundreds of dollars have been paid in at the office on North Main street by people who were missed in the first canvass and who could not wait until later to pay their share to help the boys at the front. On Wednesday about eleven hundred dollars in cash and notes was taken in and on Tuesday about six hundred dollars.

In spite of the excellent progress which is being made there are still many who have failed to prove their patriotism by paying their assessments. Those who have not as yet done so are urged to call at the office and fill out the cards. Treasurer Roy Wisner is fast checking over all the subscriptions and as soon as he completes the work the new lists will be made out and the campaigners will again begin their work.

FIRE DAMAGES HOME OF CHARLES CAIN

Blaze Which Started in Hallway Threatens to Destroy House. Damages Amount to One Hundred Dollars.

The home of Charles C. Cain, 21 N. Chatham street was damaged by fire last evening at six o'clock to the extent of between seventy-five and a hundred dollars. The fire which started from some clothing hanging on the stairway in the front hall had a good start and only for the prompt work of the owners and the fire department the damage would have been greater.

Due to some unknown cause the clothes which were hanging in the hall suddenly started to blaze and immediately set the side walls and stairway on fire. The alarm was sent in and by the time the department arrived the owners had the fire under control. It was only necessary to use two hand pumps to extinguish the blaze.

BASEMENTS FLOODED BY RISE OF WATER

Rock River Causes Much Anxiety in City Water Has Raised Six Inches Since Tuesday

Although it was thought by many that unless this community had some very bad rains, that Rock River would not rise to any great height, but during the past two days it has been rising rapidly and is now six inches higher than it was on Tuesday. A great quantity of the high water is due to the Garret River and also to Lake Koshongong which is covered with ice, and the mild weather is thawing the ice.

Several of the stores on the bank of the river have basements covered with several inches of water. The Ideal Chemical Company, located on Park street, have been forced to suspend business on account of the high water. The water is continuing to rise, and a few of the residents expect it to do some very heavy damage.

Two of the piles under the building occupied by the Bohlen Implement company at Court street have been washed away, and the rear end of the building is sagging. The power plant at Indian Ford is still closed down, and it will be impossible to reopen it until the water has decreased.

The bridges over the river at Court, Milwaukee streets and Fourth avenue, were crowded throughout the day with people watching the water. The current at the present time is very swift.

CAMPAIN ABANDONED BY CITY FEDERATION

Fly Campaign in Janesville Will Not Be Carried on This Year By Ladies; Housewives Asked to Watch Flies.

The fly campaign as an organized part of the work of the Federation has been abandoned this year. But word has gone out from the officials that housewives should be diligent in killing the fly wherever found, as they are beginning to appear, that they must be on the alert to kill them wherever they are found. The children also should be taught to watch for them and swat them on sight, even though there is no money prize offered for them this year.

MADISON TEAM HOLD LEAD IN TOURNAMENT

Capital Stars Leading Five Men Event In Southern Wisconsin Bowling Meet With 2772.

After two weeks of bowling in the Southern Wisconsin tournament, the Capital Stars of Madison, Wis., are well known everywhere, as on the job several times, and prevented some of the teams from landing safely in first place.

Several teams which are entered in the tournament prefer to bowl near the end of the meet, for in the next few days there are six teams coming from Rockford on Saturday and at least four of them ought to dispose of the teams that are now leading. The Capital Stars are coming with the intention of grabbing the big money in each event and there will be some class rolling at the Capital Stars on Saturday. Following is the standing of the teams at the present time:

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS HOLD STATE TOURNEY

Stevens Point, Mar. 21.—Nine high school basketball teams, champions of their section came here today to take part in the state high school basketball tournament staged by the normal school of Wisconsin. The tournament which starts this afternoon will be managed by the Stevens Point Normal school officials.

The teams competing for the state championship are: Madison, Watertown, New Glarus, Mauston, Ripon, Cumberland, Eau Claire, Superior, and Stevens Point. The tournament will continue for three days with the championship game on Saturday night.

The games will be refereed by S. A. Johnson, director of physical education for the normal school. It is generally located and is considered one of the best basketball cities in the state. It has conducted the most successful basketball tournaments in years. The teams are expected to fill the normal school gym.

More than 100 visiting players and coaches will be here for the tournament and delegations of fans are coming.

Sport Snap Shots

Christy Mathewson, Reds' manager, is one of the big drive this spring, and Matty is pleased with the thought that the Red machine is going to start along the track at the very beginning. Since Matty has been successful as a manager every fan in the country has been a booster for the Reds. It isn't likely that very many would be except if they had to make it uncomfortable for the Charles Street, battery partner of Walter Johnson, for many years and after a catcher with the Yankees, has been up to go into the army. He is now Sergeant Street of Company D, Thirtieth United States Infantry.

Jim Hughie, of the Cleveland Indians, will visit manager Fohl at the New Orleans training camp, to discuss the 1918 contract. Hughie has been a big factor in the team's success and is expected to be a key player in the coming season.

Charles Stannard and Harry Tutill, of the Detroit Tigers, are expected to be in the lineup for the 1918 season. Stannard is a veteran catcher and Tutill is a promising young player.

Joe Benz decided last fall that he had enough major league baseball and announced that he would leave after the 1917 season. Benz was one of the hardest hitting left-handers on the team.

When the Red Sox play their first series with the world's champion at Chicago, "Doc" Foss will be celebrated. Johnny has always been a favorite of the fans there.

With Larry Gardner gone from the Red Sox, the team will lack a left-handed offensive strength. Gardner was one of the hardest hitting left-handers on the team.

HIGH SCHOOL WILL PLAY "Y" SATURDAY

The Browns formerly were well fixed in southpaw talent, perhaps too well fixed, with Plank, Koo, Hamilton, Weftman and sometimes Siler. Now Jones has two southpaws, Nick Cullip and Lefty Telfield.

Arthur Fletcher of the Giants, Zach Wheat of Brooklyn and Tom Clark of the Reds are the oldest players in point of service on the clubs in the National League. The three men all joined the club in 1910. Dick Rudolph did not become a member until 1913, but he has been with the club longer than any other of the present members. Two other players who joined the club are now the veterans of their teams, joined the club the same year. They are Jim Vaughn of the Cubs, and Bill Doak of the Cardinals.

Leslie Mann, who has been engaged all winter at an army camp near Houston, Tex., as a physical instructor for the troops, has been relieved of his duties and will rejoin the Cubs at their training camp in Pasadena, Calif. Mann was quoted recently as having said that he did not care to play ball this year, but preferred to go to France with them if possible, and news of his decision to return to the Cubs was a surprise to Chicago fans. Manager Fred Mitchell, naturally, is much pleased by the return of the player, for his loss would have been a heavy blow to the Cubs. Mann hit .273 last season and was particularly dangerous at the plate with runners on the sacks. Furthermore, he is a good fielder and is remarkably fast on the base paths.

"Hack" Ebel, the first baseman purchased by the Red Sox from Richmond, had a tryout with the Cleveland club when Harry Davis was manager of the Indians.

There was a time when the sport news out of Chicago was reasonably dependable and unlike much of what comes out of the Windy city. But more recently the Windy city is getting the reputation of being the chief source of rumors and most everything issued forth from Chicago must be considered as a piece of news. It is a grain of salt, as they phrase it. Perhaps Charlie Weegman's violent effort to build up his Cubs and the large style of playing the Cubs in that connection is one reason why Chicago is now regarded in this way. We have all heard so much about Grover Alexander's demands and then there has been all this talk about George Whitford. None of it seems to pan out as advertised but it has done this much, it has kept the Cubs out in front of the White Sox in Chicago papers. One heard very little about Orlan Rowland and his world-beaters but it's a cinch that after the season starts the Sox will beat the Cubs in popularity in spite of Charlie's bankroll.

"Chuck" Wortman, Cub shortstop, has been working in a Chicago haberdashery store since the close of the 1917 season. He was to remark that Mr. Wolcott will have a real task on his hands when he tries to win the shortstop assignment.

Grover Cleveland Alexander is getting his salary wing into condition at Hot Springs, Ark. The famous pitcher, who has been demanding a bonus of $10,000 in addition to his $12,000 salary, has decided to quit and will join the Cubs on time. It is said that Alexander's unreasonable demands were prompted by the Cubs' desire for widespread publicity and that the star baseman had a thorough understanding with his new employers all along. As soon as Alexander puts on a Cub uniform and appears in a championship game, Weegman in a flash will turn over $50,000 to the owners of the Philles.

Milton Junction

Milton Junction, March 21.—The basketball championship of the city will be decided at the high school gymnasium Saturday evening when the school athletes will play the Y. M. C. A. team in what is expected to be a close contest. Both teams seem to be on a par and should put up a classy game for the followers of both teams who will be on hand to cheer their favorites.

Although the high school five was in attendance at the Milton tournament Wednesday and today, they will be in condition to play the game. According to the statements of the Y. M. C. A. players they are out to break the winning streak of the highs. It is possible that only one more game will be played by the highs after the Y. M. C. A. game on Saturday. Arrangements are being made to play the return game at Beloit in the city next week Friday. Some dispute over dates has arisen, but it is expected that a definite date will be decided upon by the end of this week. Beloit wishes to play the game in the afternoon one week from Saturday, but the locals wish to hold the contest in the evening.

Walter Fleming is assisting in the I. C. K. S. drug store out of school hours.

Mrs. Andrew Fitzgerald and Mrs. George Furey of East Delavan, are spending the day with the former's daughter, Mrs. Harold Williamson.

The W. R. C. will furnish a supper in their hall March 28th in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Esterling will complete their moving to Darien today.

A peculiar incident occurred to a couple who were driving into town shortly after noon today. The blimp, well saturated with kerosene through an accident beforehand and in some mysterious manner took fire and was burning at a pretty good rate when the couple, passing by, saw the flame and having a horse hitched to a buggy, proceeded to overtake them, being unable to attract their attention by shouting and calling. When the man and woman saw their danger they soon emptied the buggy of its contents and put out the fire.

PATRIOTIC GATHERING ARRANGED FOR MONDAY

MONSTER MEETING WILL BE HELD AT MYERS THEATRE AT ONE THIRTY O'CLOCK.
MAJOR GENERAL SWINTON WILL SPEAK.

HON. F. G. ODELL TO TALK

Secretary of the Federal Farm Loan Bank of Omaha Will Also Address People.—High School Students Will Hear Speakers.

Monday afternoon, March 25th, will see the opening of the Third Liberty Loan campaign in this city. Although the work of actually selling the bonds will not begin for several weeks, the way is being paved by a speaking party which is traveling throughout this state and which will invade Janesville on Monday.

The speakers' party is headed by Major General E. E. Swinton, assistant secretary of the British War Cabinet, and Frank G. Odell, Secretary of the Federal Farm Loan Bank of Omaha. Major General Swinton is army attached to Lord Reading, British Ambassador to the United States, originator of the British war tank and organizer of the first tank corps, V. L. Ross, director of sales for Wisconsin, is proud of the record made by this state in the last campaign, and he stated that he is sure that the state will do even better this year.

Major General Swinton, who is well versed in the conditions existing since the war started, and is fully aware of the tremendous amount of money that is being raised for the war, is a successful close, is an able speaker and everyone in this community who possibly can is urged to be present at the meeting on Monday. Major General Swinton has already addressed several such patriotic meetings throughout the state and the meetings have all been inspiring and speak well of the state. He is proud of the record made by this state in the last campaign, and he stated that he is sure that the state will do even better this year.

Hon. Frank Odell, who is also to address the meeting, is a well known and brings a message to the people of Janesville that will have a tendency to convince them that this country is at war with a powerful country and that all resources possible are needed to bring the war to an end.

In order that the younger folks of this city have an opportunity to hear these speakers it has been arranged by the local men in charge to have Major General Swinton and Hon. Frank G. Odell speak to the students of the high school on Monday morning at eight fifty o'clock.

DRY QUESTION WILL BE ISSUE AT POLLS

Janesville Will Vote on Wet and Dry Question at Spring Election.—Papers Will Be Filed Today.

That this city is to vote on the wet and dry question again this year was made known by the committee in charge of the "dry" campaign this morning. Although the papers have been circulated for some time it has been done very quietly and it was not made public until today that this city was to vote on the license question.

The papers, which are to be filed late today or on Friday, contain several hundred signatures. The law requires that the petitions have ten per cent of the voters who voted at the last election for governor. This would be about two hundred and eight signers and the committee claims that they now have over three hundred qualified voters' names.

An executive committee composed of Rev. Ewing (chairman), Rev. T. P. Thorsen, Prof. John Arbutnot, Arthur M. Fisher and Rev. J. A. Melrose has been appointed and it was these men that had charge of the papers which were circulated.

Mr. Ewing stated this morning that preparations for the suggested election had not as yet been completed but the committee is in session this afternoon and it is the opinion of Rev. Ewing that all details will be completed at the meeting in regard to the coming election.

The dry workers in this city are very optimistic in the campaign and claim that the coming election will not see the downfall of the saloon in Janesville. No headquarters have been established as yet but it is thought that the prohibitionists in the downtown district and start their campaign in earnest to drive the saloons from Janesville.

CHARLES L. VALENTINE UNOPPOSED FOR MAYOR

No New Candidates Have Filed Papers to Enter Race for Mayor. Hal Reitenberg Files Papers for City Clerk.

Today was the last day in which to file papers for the coming city election, which will be held on April 2. At a late hour this afternoon Charles L. Valentine was the only candidate for mayor and although several names have been mentioned, no opposition is in the coming election.

Ensign H. Ransom, 217 South East street, filed his papers for alderman from the third ward and Hal Reitenberg, 455 Washington avenue, has filed his papers with the city clerk for the position of city clerk.

Gardner Kallvåg, a candidate for alderman from the second ward, filed his papers with the city clerk this afternoon.

It was rumored throughout the city that the Junior Guards and Harry and Norman would both seek the office of mayor but both claimed that they would not run under any circumstances.

JANESVILLE QUINTET LOSES TO STOUGHTON

High School Team Lose Chance of Coping First Place at Tournament When They Lose Game 32 to 13.

Janesville high school lost the second game of the Milton Miller game this morning when the strong Stoughton five defeated them by the score of 32 to 13. It was one of the hardest fought games of the tournament and although the score was overwhelming, the local team fought all the way, but were forced to bow to a superior team. Captain Bill Fein was ruled out of the game for having fouled.

This afternoon the local team will meet Bolot and West Allis will play Edgerton. The winners of these two games will play this evening for third place and the local team should cope easily. Milton and Stoughton play the last game of the meet tonight for first place.

MATRIMONIAL

HUGGINS MAKES A HIT IN NEW YORK

Miller Huggins.

Miller Huggins is already a large hit with the New York Yankees fans. The team has not yet had a chance to show its improvement on the field but Huggins has pleased the fans with some shrewd deals and he is probably up to something of the sort in his latest picture above.

35 DRAFTED MEN TO BE SENT TO OREGON AND 11 TO ROCKFORD

Camp Grant Contingent Will Leave During Five Days Beginning March 29th.—Fort Stevens Bunch To Go April 3-8.

Official orders for the calling of two contingents of drafted men were received by the local board this morning, from Adjutant General Holway. Eleven men are to be called and sent to Camp Grant during the five-day period beginning Friday, March 29th. Another contingent of thirty-five men will be called and forwarded to Fort Sheridan during the five-day period beginning Wednesday, April 3rd.

Only white men in the first class who have qualified for military service are to be called. Any man so qualified may volunteer, and he will be sent regardless of order number. Nine men have already volunteered to be sent to the Rockford contingent, and the board is ready to accept two more men who desire to be sent to Camp Grant, rather than to Oregon. If sufficient number of men in the first class do not volunteer for service in the western camp, they will be sent in sequence of their order numbers.

As yet, no time has been set for the departure of either of the contingents. The American Railway Association is at present working out a schedule which will be announced very shortly, and which will contain the date and hour of departure, as well as the details of the trip. Until these instructions are received, no notices to the men to be called, can be sent out.

Fort Stevens, the objective point of the second contingent of drafted men, is located in the extreme northwestern part of Oregon, on the Pacific Coast, at the mouth of the Columbia river. It is a regular army post, and is used primarily for the training of men for the coast artillery. Just what branch of the service these men will enter, has not been announced by General Holway.

The funeral services for the late Frank J. Nikel, 421 Galena street, will be held Friday morning at nine o'clock from the St. Patrick's church. The interment will be at the cemetery at rest in the Mount Olivet cemetery.

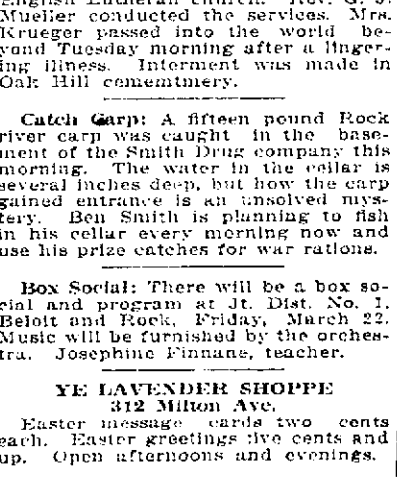

Mrs. Minnie Krueger.
Funeral services for the late Mrs. Minnie Krueger were held this afternoon at two o'clock at the St. Peter's English Lutheran church. Rev. G. J. Mueller conducted the services. Mrs. Krueger passed into the world here Tuesday morning after a lingering illness. Interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Catch Carp: A fifteen pound Rock River carp was caught in the basement of the Smith Drug company this morning. The water in the cellar is several inches deep, but how the carp gained entrance is an involved mystery. Ben Smith is planning to fish in his cellar every morning now and use his prize catches for war rations.

Box Social: There will be a box social program at St. Dis. No. 1, Belmont and Rock, Friday, March 22. Music will be furnished by the orchestra. Josephine Finnans, teacher.

Women Calmly Toss T N T Shells About In Shops Of England But They're A 1 Workers, Cut Errors

By RHETA CHILDE DORR.
London (By Mail). When the greatest achievement of German genius will look small beside that of the French and British in the first battle of France, it is the fact that British all-day troops beat 600,000 German troops, the Germans having ten guns to the allies' one. As for shells, the Germans probably had the advantage, a hundred to one.

The allies won that battle, but they could not go on winning under such handicaps, and both in England and France the work of training and now training and creating mountains of munitions was pushed at fever heat.

There wasn't any time to consider the usual rules and not much of that to exist men and to consider the question of producing shells and munitions.

Dozens of many hardships and inconveniences before conditions became even partly satisfactory to the workers, but it must be said that from the point of view of efficiency the British authorities made a record which has hardly any parallel. Consider the problem as compared with the usual. When the Germans were taken into their own hands, they began to work immediately began to expand. We had the plants, we had the labor, we had the materials, and there was no delay in getting into the sense that Britain was in a hurry.

FACTORIES FAIRLY REX OVER ARES AND ACRES

I was in Liverpool, Canada, in 1915, and I saw with amazement the fact that the great war in the factories there. Before the war the factory occupied one large, old-fashioned building. Now new buildings, covering ten or more acres, had all been built, erected, and building was still going on. All the other factories, where women were and other power-time workers were turned out, and the women were looking all the time. The town was full of strangers, everybody rushing to work in the munitions works.

Things were not so simple in England. England was at war, and there were occupied with a thousand responsibilities and emergencies. The land family quarters went on, and the government had to fight on questions of what kind of munitions to manufacture, what kind of guns were needed, where the materials were to be obtained in a hurry, and how to get the workers and the jobs together.

Industry as a whole speedily became chaotic. Hundreds of thousands of women were turned out of work as dressmaking, millinery, confectionery, jewelry, and scores of more women's trades and so-called luxury trades fell slack.

GATHER WOMEN FROM ALL OVER ISLAND

These women, together with thousands of domestic workers and a smaller group of women of the leisure classes, were hastily drafted into the munitions factories. Between July, 1914, and January 1917, the number of women employed in the group of industries included in the engineering trades rose from 170,000 to more than 800,000. In some establishments as high as 95 per cent of the women were put at jobs formerly monopolized by men.

In order to accomplish all this it was necessary to move great masses of women from one part of the United Kingdom to others. For instance, in Birmingham, already a center for mechanical trades, there was a very small reserve of women workers. The necessary recruits had to be brought from as far north as the Orkneys, and as far south as the Channel Islands.

Other million centers imported women from Ireland. In one northern center I watched a number of large women, shuffling boxes of loaded shells in the magazine prior to shipping. These women, working in pairs, stacked those boxes, weighing over 120 pounds each, higher and higher. One short while one a little longer, and the boxes soared upward like cardboard.

"Fisher lasses from the Scotch coast," explained the superintendent, "splendid for heavy work."

HOUSING GETS ATTENTION OF SPECIAL COMMISSION

Housing was a problem already acute in working class neighborhoods. Yet England had to find a way to house her new labor army. There were many other problems, and unless they were solved much illness, misery, homesickness and immorality must result.

The government, of department of labor was organized under the Ministry of Munitions. Also a committee was appointed "to consider and advise on questions of industrial factigue, hours of labor and other matters affecting the personal health and physical efficiency of the workers in munition factories and workshops."

The committee consisted mainly of physicians, factory inspectors and experts in special lines, economic and industrial.

The government combed the women's universities and higher schools, the suffrage societies and women's organizations; they called out women of superior brains from the professions, from business and from homes to help organize the munition factories on a basis of health, safety and efficiency.

Working together, these departments, committees and individuals have performed a feat which can only be described as a new industrial revolution. They have set standards of humanity in the factories which it would be criminal ever to lower. They have established an efficiency system such as England never dreamed of, and they have created a new working class which will never consent to be placed on a basis much lower than it now occupies.

WORKING ON ALL TASKS IN MUNITIONS PLANT

I spent a long day in one of these new industrial centers, a government-controlled shell-filling factory in Scotland. Covering nearly 600 acres, this great factory, the temporary establishment built only for wartime, it consists of a vast labyrinth of wooden sheds connected by galleries through which run a network of narrow trolley tracks for the transportation of materials and finished products.

A high stockade surrounds the place, and soldiers guard it night and day. The workers, dressed in blue uniforms, are to the platforms adjoining the great magazines piled to the ceiling with shells of every size, from the little .55 inch to the big 14-inch twelve-inch monsters, which can only be lifted by the strongest arms.

It was on a bright day for Scotland in December that I saw this factory in other words, it rained only at intervals and there was no fog. I was escorted by a motor car, driven of course by a woman, met me at the station and whirled me the half-mile or more to the factory gate. Here a smart young policeman stopped me, examined my pass and waved the car onward.

In the main office I talked briefly with the manager of the works, who explained something of the wages system and the bonus system which sometimes adds as high as $5 a week to the pay envelope, and then he introduced me to the welfare manager.

And she told me how details of these policemen and other details of firewomen patrolled the works and the outlying yards day and night, watching for infractions of the rules and for any possible fire risks.

These were the only women who lived at the works, because all the fifteen hundred women employees were in fairly easy commuting distance from their homes. The fire-women and policemen, however, could never be spared from the works. In an emergency they might be needed.

Before we entered the work sheds I had to put rubbers on my shoes, give up my handbag and every bit of metal about me except my watch, worn inside my dress. If my hairpins had not been shell I should have been required to shed even them. You don't carry matches or metal, or anything that could possibly help T N T to explode, into a shell-filling factory.

"DIRTY SIDE" AND "CLEAN SIDE" KEPT SEPARATE

The factory was divided into two distinct parts, "dirty side" and "clean side." One never touches the other. For example, before I crossed into "clean side," which is that part of the works where shells and explosives are handled, I had to pass down an one barrier across the door put on one rubber, cross, without touching it, the barrier with that foot, put on the other rubber and transfer that foot to the clean side. When I went back I reversed the process.

When the workers come on duty, day or night, they are first into the shift or dressing rooms. These are on "dirty side," and there the workers change their clothes. They take down their hair, braid it, and tuck it inside a khaki-colored cap. They take off their gowns and petticoats and put on a uniform consisting of khaki trousers and a loose jumper. They take off their shoes, and with working shoes, gridden pegged in hand, they cross to the barrier, and after they have donned the working shoes, as I did my rubbers, they stand up on clean side ready to take off their gowns and petticoats and put on a uniform consisting of khaki trousers and a loose jumper.

The factory, although of temporary construction, is as clean, bright and well lighted as any permanent one. It is electrically lighted and steam heated, as of course it had to be, and the lighting and ventilation seemed to be perfect. As we as all shells, and I watched with fascination the milling and mixing of the deadly stuff through all its process.

WORKING ON T N T GIRLS WEAR VEILS

In a big hopper great lumps of amorphous were ground to a coarse flour. The khaki-clad girl poked and pounded the lumps with a stick to hasten their progress under a series of rollers until the coarse flour came the finest powder. Each stage of the process was watched by girls, and when the powder became fine enough to fly upward the girls' noses and mouths were covered with thickly-knitted silk and cotton respirator.

When it came to the process of grinding T N T and incorporating the finished mixture the girls wore in addition close blue veils. T N T is the most fearsome chemical composition known in the munitions industry.

It is more fearsome because the doctors do not yet know just how it poisons. Whether through the mucous membranes, through the skin or through actual swallowing of particles. They do know that it sometimes attacks the liver and the unfortunate victim dies in a few days of the rotting and sometimes the complete destruction of the organ.

The workers in T N T have a special rag. Before they go on duty in the morning they go to the canteen and eat a hearty and carefully planned breakfast.

"Apparently these girls need to be very well nourished," said the welfare manager. "They used to faint at their work, and we had one or two deaths. The doctor first ordered the T N T workers to drink milk for breakfast, and the managers allowed them a certain amount of money for the milk. Well, some drank the milk and others didn't. So the doctor ordered them to eat breakfast at the canteen. We haven't had any trouble since."

GIRLS ARE UNIFORMLY PICTURES OF HEALTH

Breakfast eaten, the T N T workers change their clothes and go to their department. But before they go to work they must visit a well-equipped lavatory and gargle their mouths and throats with an antiseptic mixture supplied by the management. Inspectors are on hand to see that they do it.

Noon comes, the whistle blows and the entire force changes back to street clothes, troops to the canteen and eats an excellent luncheon. Soups, meats, vegetables, sweets, tea or coffee, bread and butter, are sold at cost, and for a very small sum, fifteen or twenty cents, a girl can buy a hearty meal.

The result of this kind of factory management shows in the blooming health of every girl I saw, and I saw hundreds. They had all passed a medical officer, a woman of unusual intelligence, before they entered the factory. No anemic or tubercular girl was accepted, and those who were employed at all were expected to improve in health.

The girls also show an efficiency far above that shown by the average lot of factory women. As I know them. These girls kept a discipline and a self-control that was admirable. In the four-story building, sometimes reaching 45 miles in its velocity, with full equipment the boys bravely led the struggle through a sea of mud and water. Singing their favorite song and shouting jokes to one another, they lent moral support and strength to other companies.

Officers and men were of the opinion that the life of yesterday was probably as severe as the famous mud of Flanders.

The Supply Company will have a dancing party, March 21st, in the barracks. The 342nd Infantry band is booked for the music. Three large busses have been chartered to bring the ladies from Rockford.

Private 1st class, Carter A. Cutter, of Bemidji, Minn., had a five dollar money order sent him. Not being aware of the value of it, he tucked it in his pocket into the envelope. Later he got hold of the envelope and destroyed all, not knowing its contents.

MISTAKES HAVE BEEN DIMINISHED BY WOMEN

Nobody made a mistake, nobody loaded or skylarked or took any chances. The girls moved like clockwork at their dangerous game, although there wasn't a man in sight to look them over.

It was the same in the melt room where the T N T reached its last stage of being melted down into a maple syrup stuff to be poured into the loaded shell. It was the same where the girls packed the shells, ramming down the powder with wooden mallets; where they screwed down the brass caps, marked, painted and boxed the shells, ready for France.

In the rooms where the cordite sticks, the heart of the shell, were being weighed and tied in little bags, the girls worked at scales that marked almost infinitesimal weights. In all the rooms were gauges, checkers and inspectors, especially trained, who looked on with the greatest responsibility.

A mistake on their part might result in the bursting of a gun at the front and the killing of ally soldiers. The girls were in safe places now—worked in munition factories. It has not happened since British women took up the work.

Camp Grant Notes

Co. C.

The company looks like a Kansas cornfield after a cyclone. Thirty-nine privates were transferred to Camp Greene, N. C., last week. All the non-commissioned officers were retained to instruct expected recruits.

Even Top Sgt. Earnest Mannott, of Chicago, joined in when the non-commissioned officers played "mop-up" on the floor of inspection.

Corporal Frank Hartung, Durand, Wis., says he fears his nose will never get over being that it is sore, as long as his boxing class lasts.

Private Gustav Hutz, Menominee, Wis., and Rutliwin Meen, of Eau Claire, Wis., has been promoted to Corporal.

Co. E.

Sgt. Ralph A. Froel, of Muncie, Ind., has been transferred to the 40th Infantry, at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Private Julius J. Koss, Knowlton, Wis., Herbert Katzenmeyer, Wausau, Wis., Joseph E. Marshall, Wis., and Hugh J. Duffy, a former Regular Army man, have been made First Class Privates.

Members of this company, who came with the Marion County quota, were remembered by the Rotary Club, of Wausau, Wis., every man receiving a Smilago Book.

Private Ralph (Parrot) Kurtzwell, of Hales Corners, Wis., has been transferred to the School of Cooks and Bakers.

Private Henry W. Plath, of Co. C, 4th Engineers, R. A., whose home is at Spencer, Wis., wrote from Camp Greene, where his regiment is stationed, saying that the southeastern climate is quite a contrast to that of Northern Illinois.

Co. K.

With the coming of spring, vigorous outdoor training has been resumed. Long hikes, target practice, and characteristic European trench warfare predominating. The reality of trench warfare is made evident by their daily drill and exercise.

Albert Kaminski and August J. Leltz have been transferred to the Quartermaster Corps, and assigned to the utility Dept. The transfer means a promotion for him and increased pay.

FOR LUMBAGO

Try Musterole. See How Quickly It Relieves.

You just rub Musterole in briskly, and usually the pain is gone—a delicious, soothing comfort comes to take its place. Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Use it instead of mustard plaster. Will not blister. Many doctors and nurses use Musterole and recommend it to their patients. They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. Always dependable. 30 and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quiet coughs. Tastes and cheaply made.

The prompt and positive action of this simple, inexpensive home-made remedy in quick relief of the inflamed or swollen membranes of the throat, chest or bronchial tubes and breaking up tight coughs, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, habitual asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (a common name for a pint bottle) and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. You then have a full pint—a family supply—of a much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste. CHAPTER XI.
"Caroline, I Want You."

PEARSON had dined hours before, but he followed his friend, resolved to please the latter by going through the form of pretending to eat.

They sat down together. Captain Elsha, with a rueful smile, pointed to the dorsal centerpiece.

"We won't touch the birthday cake, Jim," he added a little later. "She's got to eat that herself."

The soup was only lukewarm, but neither of them commented on the fact. The captain had scarcely tasted of his when he paused, his spoon in air.

"Hey!" he exclaimed. "Listen! What's that? By the everlasting! It is. Here they are at last!"

He sprang up with such enthusiasm that his chair tipped backward against the butler's devoted shins. Pearson, almost as much pleased, also rose.

Captain Elsha paid scant attention to the chair incident.

"What are you waiting for?" he demanded, whirling on Edwards, who was fighting the chair with one hand and rubbing his knee with the other. "Don't you hear 'em at the door? Let 'em in!"

He reached the library first, his friend following more leisurely. Caroline and Stephen had just entered.

"Well," he cried in his quartered voice, his face beaming with relief and delight, "you are here, ain't you? I began to think—Why, what's the matter?"

The question was addressed to Stephen, who stood nearest to him. The boy did not deign to reply. With a contemptuous grunt he turned scornfully away from his guardian.

"What is it, Caroline?" demanded Captain Elsha. "Has anything happened?"

The girl looked coldly at him. A new brooch—Mrs. Corcoran Dunn's birthday gift—sparkled at her throat.

"No accident has happened, if that is what you mean," she said.

"But—why, yes, that was what I meant. You was so awful late, and you know you said you'd be home for dinner, so?"

"I changed my mind. Come, Steve."

She turned to leave the room. Pearson at that moment entered it. Stephen saw him first.

"What?" he cried. "Well, of all the nerve! Look, Caro!"

"Jim—Mr. Pearson I mean—ran in a few minutes ago," explained Captain Elsha, bewildered and stammering.

"He thought, of course, we'd had dinner—and—and—he just wanted to wish you many happy returns, Caroline."

Pearson had extended his hand, and a "Good evening" was on his lips. Stephen's strange behavior and language caused him to halt. He flushed, awkward, surprised, indignant.

"Caroline turned and saw him. She started, and her cheeks also grew crimson. Then, recovering, she looked him full in the face and deliberately and disdainfully turned her back.

"Come, Steve," she said again, and walked from the room.

Her brother hesitated, glared at Pearson and then stalked haughtily after her.

Captain Elsha's bewilderment was supreme. He stared open mouthed after his nephew and niece and then turned slowly to his friend.

"What on earth, Jim?" he stammered. "What's it mean?"

Pearson shrugged his shoulders. "I think I know what it means," he said. "I presume that Miss Warren and her brother have learned of my trouble with their father."

"Hey? No, you don't think that's it?" "I think there's no doubt of it."

"But how?" "I don't know how. What I do know is that I should not have come here. I felt it and, if you will remember, I said so. I was a fool. Good night, captain."

For and furiously angry at his own indecision which had placed him in this humiliating situation, he was striding toward the hall. Captain Elsha seized his arm.

"Stay where you are, Jim!" he commanded. "If the trouble's what you think it is I'm more to blame than anybody else, and you shan't leave this house till I've done my best to square you."

"Thank you, but I don't wish to be 'squared.' I've done nothing to be ashamed of, and I have borne as many insults as I can stand. I'm going."

"No, you ain't. Not yet. I want you to stay."

At that moment Stephen's voice reached them from the adjoining room. "I tell you I shall, Caro!" it proclaimed fiercely. "Do you suppose I'm going to permit that fellow to come here a minute—or to go until he is made to understand what we think of him and why? No, by gad! I'm the man of this family, and I'll tell him a few things."

Pearson's jaw set grimly. "You may let go of my wrist, Captain Warren," he said. "I'll stay."

Possibly Stephen's intense desire to prove his manliness made him self-conscious. At any rate, he never again

"Well," she said coldly, "what do you want of me?"

He peered more ridiculously boyish than when, an instant later, he marched into the library and confronted his uncle and Pearson.

"I—I want to say"—he began majestically. "I want to say"—

He paused, choking, and brandished his fist.

"I want to say"—he began again. "All right, Steve," interrupted the captain dryly; "then I'd say if I was you, I guess it's time you did."

"I want to—to tell that fellow there," with a vicious stab of his forefinger in the direction of Pearson, "that I consider him an—an ingrate—and a scoundrel—and a miserable—"

"Steady!" Captain Elsha's interruption was sharp this time. "Steady now! Leave out the pet names. What is it you've got to tell?"

"I—my sister and I have found out what a scoundrel he is, that's what! We have learned of the lies he wrote about father. We know that he was responsible for all that cowardly, lying stuff in the Planet—all that about the trolley combine. And we don't intend that he shall sneak into this house again. If he was the least part of a man he would never have come."

"Mr. Warren"—began Pearson, stepping forward. The captain interrupted. "Hold on, Jim!" he said. "Just a minute now. You've learned something, you say, Steve. The Dunnus told you, I suppose."

"Never mind who told me!" "I don't—much. But I guess we'd better have a clear understanding, all of us. Caroline, will you come in here, please?"

He stepped toward the door. Stephen sprang in front of him.

"My sister doesn't intend to cheapen herself by entering that man's presence," he declared hotly. "I'll deal with him myself."

"All right. But I guess she'd better be here just the same. Caroline, I want you."

"She shan't come."

"Yes; she shall. Caroline!"

The boy would have detained him, but he pushed him firmly aside and walked toward the door. Before he reached it, however, his niece appeared.

"Well," she said coldly, "what is it you want of me?"

"I want you to hear Mr. Pearson's side of this business—and mine before you do anything you'll be sorry for."

"I think I've heard quite enough of Mr. Pearson already. Nothing he can say or do will make me more sorry than I am or humiliate me more than the fact that I have treated him as a friend."

"The icy contempt in her tone was cutting. Pearson's face was white, but he spoke clearly and with deliberation.

"Miss Warren," he said, "I must insist that you listen for another moment. I owe you an apology for—"

"Apology!" broke in Stephen, with a scornful laugh. "Apology! Well, by gad, just hear that, Caro!"

The girl's lip curled. "I do not wish to hear your apology," she said.

"But I wish you to hear it not for my attitude in the trolley matter nor for what I published in the Planet nor for my part in the disagreement with your father. I wrote the truth and nothing more. I considered it right then—I told your father so—and I have not changed my mind. I should act exactly the same under similar circumstances."

"You blackguard!" shouted Stephen. Pearson ignored him utterly.

"Do owe you an apology," he continued, "for coming here as I have done knowing that you were ignorant of the affair. I believe now that you are misinformed as to the facts, but that is immaterial. You should have been told of my trouble with Mr. Warren. I should have insisted upon it. That I did not do so is my fault, and I apologize, but for that only. Good evening."

He shook himself free from the captain's grasp, bowed to the trio and left the room. An instant later the outer door closed behind him.

Caroline turned to her brother. "Come, Steve," she said.

"Stay right where you are!" Captain Elsha did not request now, he commanded. "Stevie, stand still. Caroline, I want to talk to you."

The girl hesitated. She had never been spoken to in that tone before. Her pride had been already deeply wounded by what she had learned that afternoon; she was fiercely resentful, angry and rebellious. She was sure she never hated any one as she did this man who ordered her to stay and listen to him. But—she stayed.

"Caroline," said Captain Elsha, after a moment of silence, "I presume likely—of course I don't know for sure, but I presume likely it's Mrs. Dunn and that son of hers who've told you what you think you know."

"It doesn't concern you who told us!" plustered Stephen, pushing forward. He might have been a fly buzzing on the wall for all the attention his uncle paid to him.

"I presume likely the Dunnus told you, Caroline," he repeated calmly.

His niece met his gaze stubbornly.

"Well," she answered, "and if they did? Wasn't it necessary we should know it? Oh"—with a shudder of disgust—"I wish I could make you understand how ashamed I feel—how wicked and ashamed I feel that I—I should have disgraced my father's memory by—Oh, but there! I can't! Yes; Mrs. Dunn and Malcolm did tell us—many things. Thank God that we have friends to tell us the truth!"

"Amen!" quietly. "I'll say amen to that, Caroline, any time. Only I want you to be sure those you call friends are real ones and that the truths they tell ain't like a bait on a fishhook, put on for bait and just thick enough to cover the barb."

"Do you mean to insinuate"—screamed the irrepressible nephew, wild at being so completely ignored. His uncle again paid not the slightest attention.

"But that ain't neither here nor there now," he went on. "Caroline, Mr. Pearson just told you that his coming to this house without telling you first of his quarrel with Bije was his fault. That ain't so. The fault was mine altogether. He told me the whole story; told me that he hadn't called since it happened, on that very account. And I took the whole responsibility and asked him to come. I did! Do you know why?"

If he expected an answer none was given. Caroline's lids dropped disdainfully. "Steve," she said, "let's go."

"Stop! You'll stay here until I finish. I want to say that I didn't tell you about the trolley fuss because I wanted you to learn some things for yourself. I wanted you to know Mr. Pearson—to find out what sort of man he was afore you judged him. Then, when you had known him long enough to understand he wasn't a liar and a blackguard, and all that Steve has called him, I was glib to tell you the whole truth, not a part of it. And, after that, I was glib to let you decide for yourself what to do. I'm a lot older than you are. I've mixed with all sorts of folks. I'm past the stage where I can be fooled—by false hair or soft soap. You can't pour sweet oil over a herring and make me believe it's a sardine. I know the Pearson stock. I've sailed over a heap of salt water with one of the family. And I've kept my eyes open since I've run across this particular member. And I knew your father, too, Caroline Warren. And I say to you now that, knowin' Jim Pearson and Bije Warren—yes, and knowin' the rights and wrongs of that trolley business quite as well as Malcolm Dunn or anybody else—I say to you that, although Bije was my brother, I'll bet my life that Jim had all the right on his side. There! That's the truth, and no hook underneath it. And some day you'll realize it too."

He had spoken with great vehemence. Now he took a handkerchief from his pocket and wiped his forehead. When he again looked at his niece he found her staring intently at him, and her eyes blazing.

Dinner Stories

The other day a man walked into a barber shop and deposited upon a table a number of articles which he took from his satchel. "This is pomade," he said.

"I am well supplied," said the barber.

"This is shaving cream."

"I see it is."

"Here is some fine bay rum."

"I don't doubt it, but I make my own."

"Here is some patent cosmetic for the mustache."

"I know it is for the mustache, also for the whiskers, but I am thoroughly stocked."

"Here is an electric brush, a duplex electric hair dye, lavender water and a patent face powder."

"I don't want any of them."

"Then why do you ask me to buy them?"

"I did not ask you to buy them. Did I say anything to you about buying them?"

"Now that I come to think of it,

you didn't."

"I did not come here to sell anything. I only wish to let you know that I possess all the toilet articles that a man has any business with. Don't you try to sell me anything or praise your wares. I am stocked! Stocked! Now give me an easy shave without asking me to buy anything!"

The Producer—I have engaged a new prima donna, and I want you to make an appointment with her and go over the songs. You will find she is a nice agreeable woman. You ought to get on well with her. Her name is Irma Blank. Do you know her?

The Conductor—Of course I do. I was married to her once.

Nujol Recommended by the Family Doctor

Constipation no longer causes suffering in the Sanford family, as Mr. Sanford explains in the following letter:—

NUJOL LABORATORIES,
STANDARD OIL CO. (New Jersey),
BAYONNE, N. J.

Dear Sirs:—

Mrs. Sanford suffered for years with chronic constipation, and nothing helped her till our doctor recommended Nujol. We keep it on hand at all times and it certainly is a good thing for the purpose.

Yours truly,

Banks, N. D.

J. Sanford.

TAKE Nujol for constipation with absolute confidence! Faithful old family doctors endorse it. Hundreds of users recommend it. Thousands relieve chronic or occasional constipation by the use of Nujol, the effective remedy that clears the system gently, safely and naturally.

Nujol restores bowel-vigor; helps Nature to move the waste regularly, without the artificial stimulation of laxative drugs. Nujol is a positively pure, drugless remedy. It relieves with no griping, indigestion or dangerous reaction. Safe for babies; for old folks; for all. Use Nujol and be "regular as clock-work."

HORSE MEAT PRICE INCREASING IN U. S.

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
Washington, March 21.—Horse meat is beginning to take a prominent place on America's food-plots.
So great is the demand for this food introduced not very long ago in several American cities, that prices have jumped considerably.
In one western city the price of horse meat has risen from 9 cents a pound, the price several months ago, to 15 cents, according to reports to the food administration and the department of agriculture.
The sale of horse meat for human food consumption has been permitted in several western cities recently and the indications are that other cities will soon follow suit.
The popularity of horse meat, according to an official of the food administration, has increased with the higher prices charged for other foods.
The popular reaction to horse meat is rapidly making this official assert.
"Among the cities that have enacted ordinances permitting the sale of horse meat for human food are New York, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Grand Island, Neb., Portland, Ore., and several others," this official said.
"In these cities the ordinance provides for the sale of horse meat in stores where no other meats are sold. The cheapness of the meat makes it accessible to the poor laborer whose wages do not keep up with the increase in the cost of living."
"Over a half million horses are slaughtered from age and serious injuries each year. A great saving would be accomplished by using these for food purposes."
"Horse meat makes a tough but sweet steak. Only popular sentiment prevents its wider consumption. Anticipation that within a short time horse meat will be common as ham and beef."

PRICES FOR KATRIB TO BE DECIDED UPON TODAY

[SPECIAL TELETYPE SERVICE.]
Chicago, March 21.—Representatives of the United States and the United States now here today for the purpose of equalizing the price of this season's catch. Eugene L. Gardner, chairman of the press committee of the United States food administration, will meet with the fish men.
Mr. Gardner explained that the herring season is about to open. He says that the fishermen of both the United States and Canada market their catches at Puget sound ports, where they are bought and distributed by American and Canadian brokers. The object of the conference today is to maintain present prices if possible.

COAL SHORTAGE IN GERMANY SERIOUS

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]
With the French Armies, March 21.—The coal shortage in Germany the past winter reached such an acute seriousness that the Imperial German command found it necessary to cut down to the minimum limit the permission of soldiers at the front to visit their families in the interior, in order to decrease the railroad traffic.
That the coal shortage was such as to threaten the outcome of the war was admitted in an order issued by Grand Quartermaster Gen. Ludendorff, copies of which were taken from German prisoners captured by the French.
Under the orders issued by Ludendorff it was impossible for a German soldier to secure a "permission" oftener than once a year. Military authorities of all the belligerents concluded that nothing tended to keep up the morale of a soldier more than regular "permissions" to visit his home and family at the rear, and conversely that nothing tended to keep up the fighting morale than to deny these "permissions" curtailed. In the French army at the present time the "permission" has its "permission" every four months and special trains carry him to and from his home.
According to accurate calculation, this order permitting leaves of absence to only 3 to 5 per cent of the German troops at a time means that each soldier can have a leave of absence only once a year.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES

Principal Geo. A. Bassford of the Janesville High School, gave the Training School students a very interesting and instructive talk, Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Bassford told about his experiences as County Superintendent of Schools in Door County. The geography of the Door County Peninsula was described, and the character of the people was well set forth. Many of the people living in this picturesque part of our state, come directly from various European countries, such as Belgian, Sweden, Norway, Russia, etc. There is a large colony of Finns, and upon Washington Island, at the point of the Peninsula, there is found a settlement of natives from Iceland. Mr. Bassford's account of his problems, and his difficulties in traveling was very interesting.
Monday morning, Mr. E. A. Claessley, of Eau Claire, District Inspector of the Bureau of Biological Survey, Washington, D. C., gave the Training School students and the eighth grade Maple School pupils, a most helpful illustrated address upon the subject of birds and their usefulness. Mr. Claessley is an expert observer of birds and his special knowledge of the subject made his remarks of particular value.

At a meeting of the Philomathean Literary Society, Wednesday afternoon, Helen Walters, of Hancock, Wis., gave the members of the society a most interesting and helpful address upon the subject of birds and their usefulness. Mr. Claessley is an expert observer of birds and his special knowledge of the subject made his remarks of particular value.

Elva Banway, who graduated a month ago, will take up her work on Monday in District No. 9, Town of Porter. She will receive a salary of sixty dollars a month.
Gertrude Condon, who has been teaching in District No. 2, town of Center, has been obliged to resign on account of ill health. Miss Condon is a member of the class of 1917. Miss Kate Carl will complete the term. Superintendent John F. Wenz, of Price County, has sent down another request for graduates of the Training School, to teach in his county. In one school the term begins on April 1st. Fifty dollars will be paid to an inexperienced teacher.
The Philomathean Literary Society has elected officers for the current quarter, as follows:
President, Mar chouc saws Cthe a tce
President, Iva Hollibush, Evansville; Vice-Pres., Josephine Panning, Janesville; Secretary, Edna Barrett, Leyden; Treasurer, Anna Knopkes, Janesville.

This present quarter will close on Saturday, April 13th, and the fourth and last quarter will begin on Monday, April 15th. There is to be no spring vacation. The seniors will do their cadet teaching during the week of April 22-28.
Principal Lowth will conduct a Teachers' Institute in Jefferson County, on Saturday, April 13th. The institute is for the county teachers and will be held at Sullivan.
Helen Bier, who graduated recently, has begun teaching a county school in Dane County, at sixty dollars a month. Five Training School graduates are now teaching in Dane County.

The Giants have been advised by the Treasury Department that they will not experience any difficulty in getting pennies, nickles and dimes to use in making change this season.

The Central league will operate as a six club circuit this year.

Chance

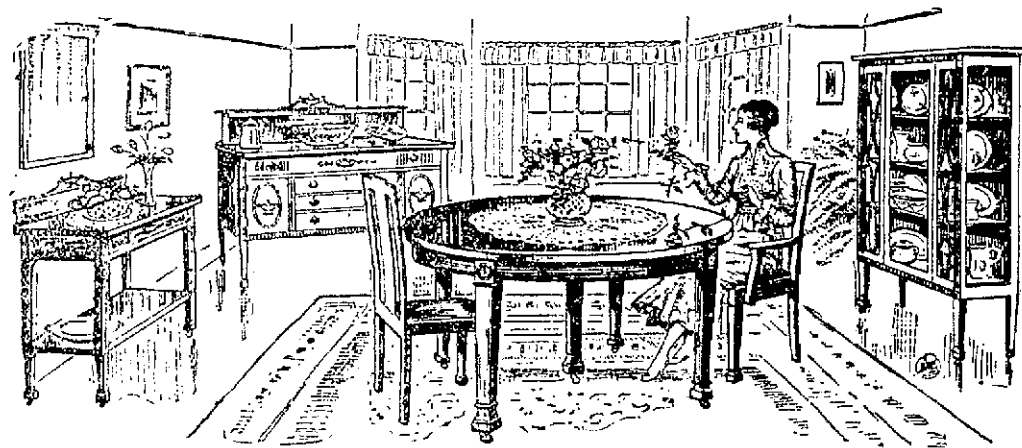

Some are born with good figures, some acquire good figures and some have good figures thrust upon them. In any case, the keynote is correct corsets. A perfect figure can only be preserved by proper corseting. And this much-to-be-desired quality can easily be acquired by wearing your individual model of C/B a la Spirite corsets. There's a model for every figure. Give yourself a chance.

Every Point is Considered

When you ask our advice or help in furnishing—a dining room, for example—we like to know in return something about the character of the room. Is it sunny or sombre, how is it decorated, and what are the furnishings of the connecting room.

Then we are able to suggest intelligently furnishings that will produce a sense of exquisite perfection, in which furniture, hangings and dainty window draperies each play an indispensable part in the harmonious whole. It's a service that considers every point—

Good Taste—Harmony of Detail—Economy—Satisfaction.

Buy now at sale prices—every piece of furniture in stock is marked at March Sale prices which represent a considerable discount from regular prices.

If you are going to need furniture any time within the next six months, buy now at sale prices and we'll deliver when you say.

The Season's Hosiery Styles

The hosiery stocks for the Spring and Summer are complete and now await their introduction.

This section will make its annual Spring and Easter exhibit of the novelties of the new season—most of which are exclusive with this store.

The popular new shades in plain hosiery for all occasions will also be exhibited.

To those who know their fashion book, hosiery takes an important place and this exposition of the styles is of much importance and interest.

This display will also demonstrate why so many people tell so many other people to 'go to The Golden Eagle for hosiery.'

Special values, 59c to $2.00.

Introducing The New Blouses

The season of blouses—the occasion for introducing the models from the New York designers for Spring and Summer—is on the calendar for tomorrow and the following days.

The whole department is ready and fully representative of the best ideas produced.

The high collar and the high or low effects, the combination of two materials, the surprise styles, the panelled back and front blouse, the over-blouse, the blouse beaded or braid trimmed, and all the other new designs that make the sum total of the fashion story of the blouses, will be properly represented and displayed at this introduction of the fashions in waists for Spring and Summer.

YOU ARE SPECIALLY INVITED TO THIS EXPOSITION.

We direct your attention to a specially charming window display of new Tailored Waists with Roll Collars or Notch Collars, very special value at $2.50 each.
